LoadMaster is a multithreaded, highly efficient, scalable, modular traffic load generator. It creates simulated user traffic (representing potential website users) by quickly creating web pages using the Webwatcher application, and loading pages into web servers. This multi-threaded, connectionless approach makes LoadMaster capable of sending more simultaneous requests than competing products. It's modular nature allows you to use it with a variety of back-ends including most major web servers, database servers, and combinations of both. Using LoadMaster is as simple as running a URL script to send a specified number of simulated users at a given time interval. Currently, LoadMaster is only able to execute URL scripts, and you can use the load level or load level time to gradually ramp up the number of simulated users. This is referred to as load shaping.
